About the Conference

Himachal Pradesh is known as Dev Bhoomi and land of gods. Most of the population lives in the villages and sub urban areas. Literacy rate in Himachal Pradesh has seen upward trend and is 82.80 per cent as per 2011 population census. Of that, male literacy stands at 89.53 per cent and female literacy is at 75.93 per cent. However, growth rate is almost static. The road density of district Hamirpur is highest in Asia. The economy of the State is mainly dependent upon Agriculture and Horticulture. Apples are grown in the hill and temperate zone of the state and are marketed throughout the country and exported to foreign countries as well. Apples production is major contributor to the state economy. Due to lack of technology and animal hazards, farmers are unable to cope up with the demand of urban population. To attain sustainability in real terms, we should move our focus from urban to rural area. It is need of hour to make rural population aware of natural resources for better management of our Mother Earth and Natural Resources.
