PEACE, JUSTICE AND STRONG INSTITUTIONS

The university involves students in the governance of the institution. The University Student Council (USC) is formed through students elected both from the under graduate and post graduate programs. This is an elected body of students whose meetings are conducted regularly. Through these regular meetings the inputs from students to improve academic standards are taken and implemented wherever required. The students' council regularly helps and guides the newly admitted students in their academic pursuits. The students' representatives are also included in the statutory bodies like Board of Studies, Anti-Drug Committee, and Anti Ragging Committee.

The Law Department of the University conduct Student Bar Council (SBC) Election each year, which embodying the spirit of democracy and student participation. This electoral process allows law students to actively engage in the selection of their representatives who will serve as the voice of the student body. The roles of the SBC are multifaceted, ranging from organizing legal events, promoting academic excellence, fostering a sense of community among law students, to addressing and advocating for student concerns. The elected members play a pivotal role in bridging the gap between students and the administration, ensuring that the interests and opinions of the law student community are well-represented. The SBC thus becomes a cornerstone in shaping the legal education experience and fostering a vibrant and inclusive academic environment.

In addition, the students are members of different activity clubs in the University and undertake many social activities like organizing blood donation camps, NSS activities and help the community in times natural disasters. The University has policies and procedures to identify local stakeholders and engage with them on a regular basis. For example, regular parent-teacher's meetings are conducted to inform parents about the progress of the wards. The stakeholders are also involved in different committees like anti-ragging committee and prevention of sexual harassment. The University bodies like Board of Governors include local government officials. The University has well defined policies to prevent corruption and bribery. The University grants full liberty to its faculty members to choose areas of their research and also to teach and speak about their research findings and areas of future research. Also, the junior faculty members enjoy complete freedom to pursue research in their areas of specialization and interest with any influence from the senior academics. The senior faculty members enjoy full freedom in teaching the courses of their choice.
